

The Kittitas Environmental Education Network (KEEN) is seeking expressions of interest from experienced and innovative interpretive design consultants to collaborate on the initial design concepts for installations at the Yakima Canyon Interpretive Center.

About the Yakima Canyon Interpretive Center

Nestled in the heart of the Yakima River Canyon, the Interpretive Center will serve as a gateway to this iconic natural area, providing visitors with opportunities to connect with the region's unique ecosystems, history, geology, and recreational offerings. The Center is envisioned as a hub for outdoor education, community engagement, and environmental stewardship.

Scope of Interest

We are looking for consultants with expertise in interpretive design, landscape architecture, and/or exhibit design who can:

- Develop initial concepts for indoor and outdoor interpretive displays that reflect the cultural, ecological, and geological significance of the Yakima Canyon.
- Incorporate creative, interactive, and educational elements that engage diverse audiences.
- Consider sustainable and low-impact design principles aligned with the Center's mission to promote environmental stewardship.
- Integrate installations with the surrounding landscape to create a seamless visitor experience.

Submission Requirements

Interested consultants are invited to submit:

1. A letter of interest outlining your qualifications and relevant experience.
2. A portfolio of similar projects, including any interpretive or nature-based design work.
3. Initial thoughts or ideas on how you would approach this project.
4. Contact information for references from past projects.

Submission Deadline

Please submit your materials by February 28, 2025 to keen@keenetwork.org.

Next Steps

This is an initial step to identify potential collaborators. Selected consultants may be invited for further discussions or to submit formal proposals for the project's next phases.
